

Maryland Stages Its

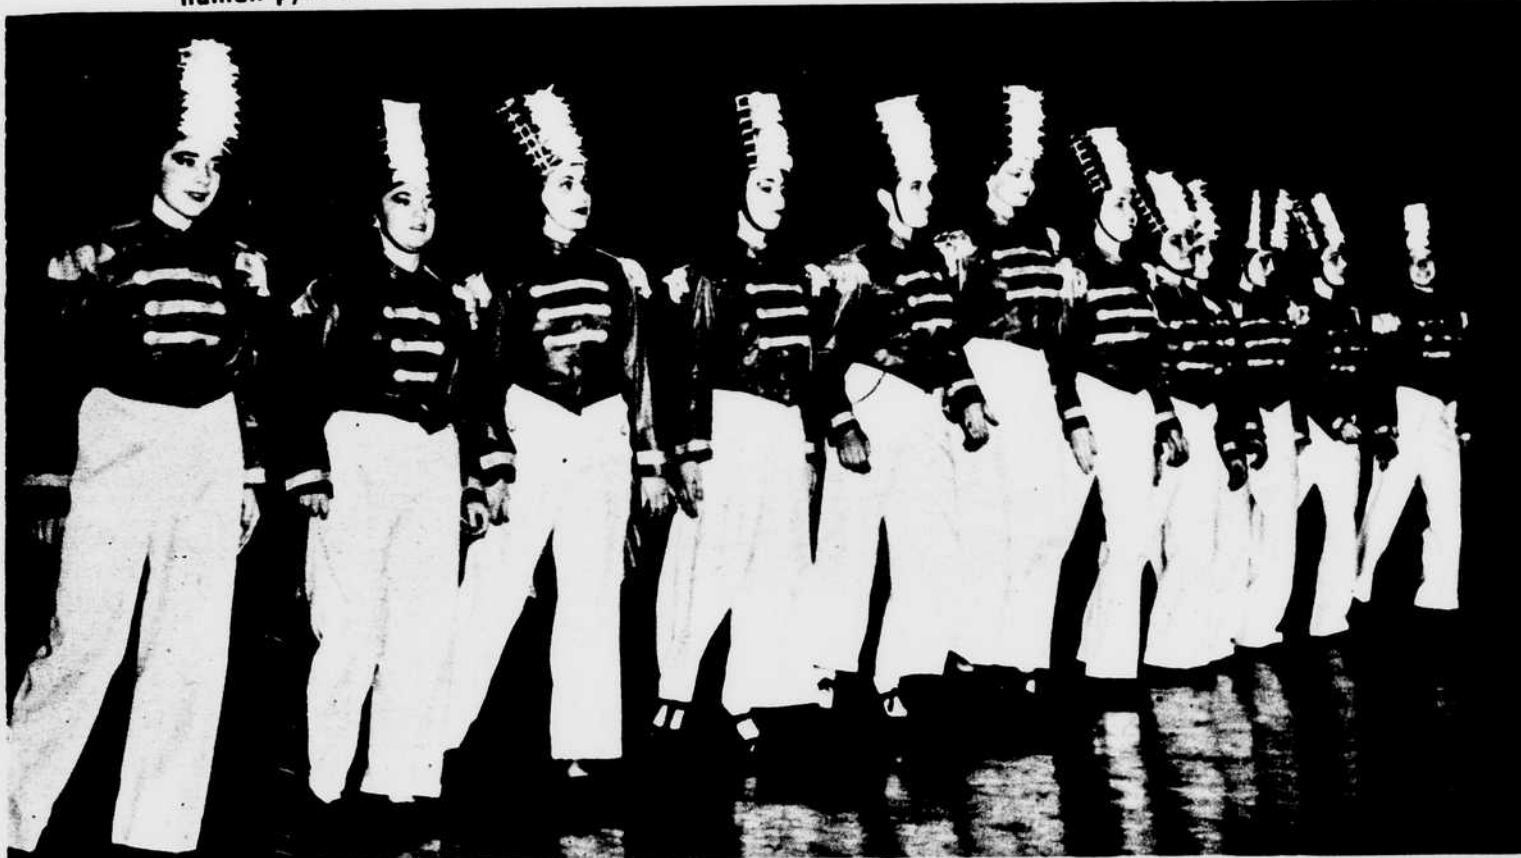

JUST how varied and colorful is life outside of the classroom at College Park these days was convincingly demonstrated to this capacity crowd in Ritchie Coliseum. The panorama view was taken as the Terp boxers were about to take the measure of the Western Maryland team—but much had gone before in the big pageant-parade of athletic and extra-curricular activities. From gym tumblers to vocal and terpsichorean artists, every talent had a chance, with co-eds getting a big share of the spotlight. These pictures show some of the high lights.

Star Staff Photos by Apperson.

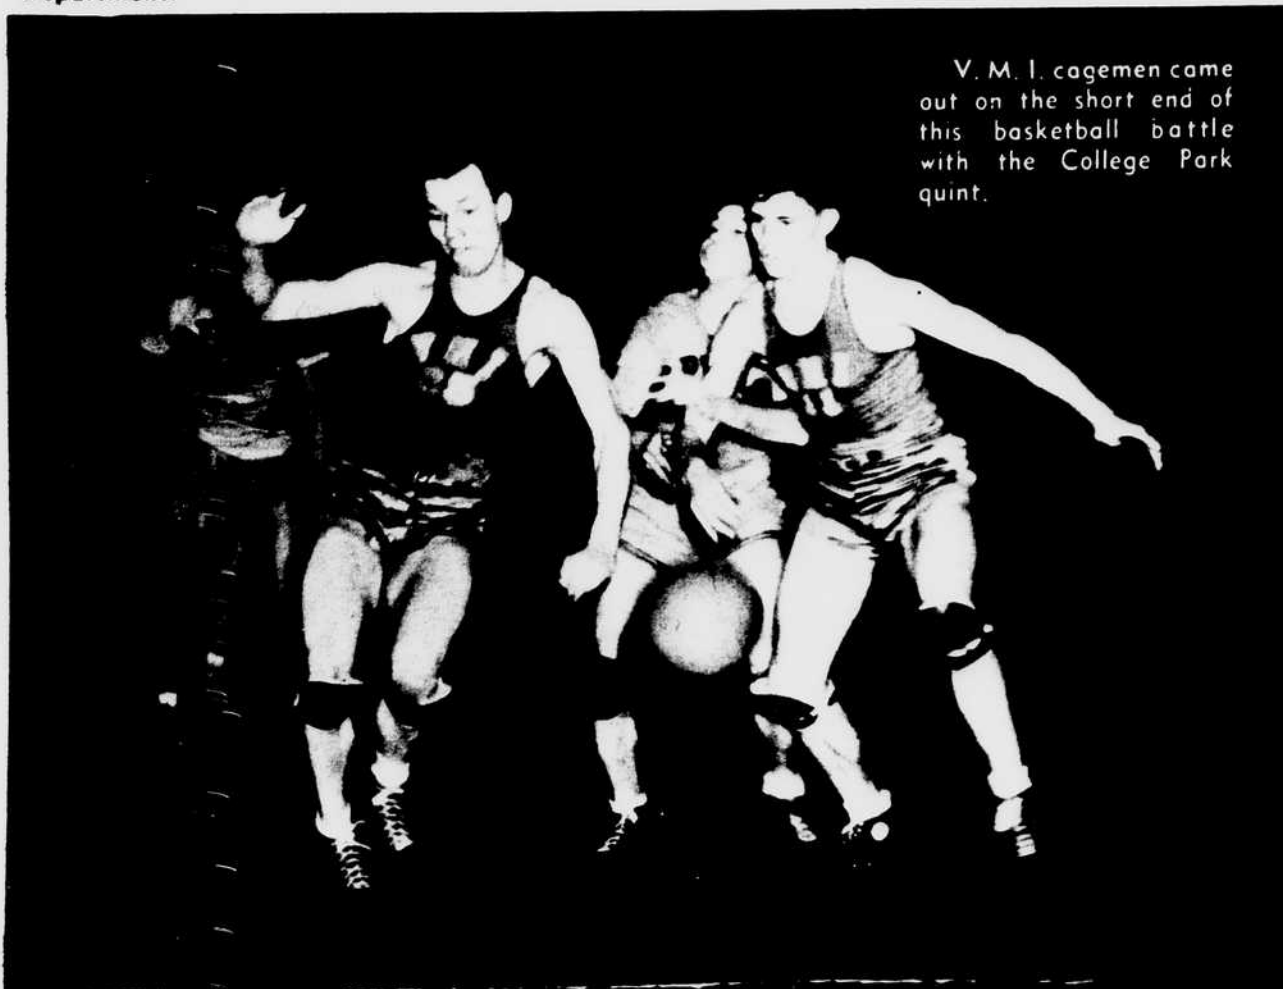

Tumblers who know when to tumble. They didn't in this human pyramid stunt.

"The New Line," a dance-march put on by co-eds of the Women's Physical Education Department.

Co-eds put on a thrilling intra-mural hockey battle, one of the events of the Women's Physical Education sports review.

V. M. I. cagemen came out on the short end of this basketball battle with the College Park quint.

This was all in the family. Paul McNeil (top at the moment) and Phil Brooks, both of Maryland, saw to it that wrestling wasn't left out of the program.